OSS/BSS solutions provider, Suntech, has introduced its SunVizion Network Rollout Management system. The system is specifically designed to support a telecoms network roll-out processes and claims to speed up network roll-out, reducing capex and improving key business processes related to network built-out and maintenance.

"SunVizion Network Rollout Management is our response to the needs of the telecoms market," says Magdalena Jablonska, marketing manager of Suntech. "The financial downturn and falling ARPU force the operators to lower capital expenditures related to network construction. On the other hand, operators need to carry on these investments, because without a modern network they are not able to meet the expectations of customers and to compete effectively."

Suntech's solution has been designed to organise and automate all processes associated with network roll-out significantly reducing the time and cost of the entire project. The system can detect and eliminate possible abnormalities and frauds, by for example pointing out significant differences between costs of realization of the same tasks in different departments or regions. Data gathered during particular processes is automatically passed on and introduced to the relevant IT system which in turn prevents the need to re-enter it by other employees and significantly improves the communication between process participants.
